REACHING HIGHER

THE FA STRATEGY FOR WOMEN'S AND GIRLS' FOOTBALL
2024-2028

SQUAD
GIRLS' FOOTBALL

TIME TO REACH HIGHER

There's no question that in the last four years we have made significant and tangible progress across every aspect of women's and girls' football, but there is no room for complacency – we must strive to reach higher.

When we look back at the strategic goals we set ourselves to grow the game (2017-20) and to inspire a generation (2020-2024) I think we should be proud of our collective achievements. From England's senior women's team winning the Euros and reaching the World Cup final, to the successful drive to provide girls with equal access to football in schools and clubs. We have seen significant increases in the number of women coaching, officiating and administering the game, as well as flourishing professional leagues, all resulting in a massive growth in fanbase and the profile of women's football.

However, there are always new challenges. Although diversity within the women's game is improving, we must double our efforts to ensure every girl and woman feels they are welcome within the football family whether as players, coaches, officials or leaders. We must provide opportunities for every woman and girl regardless of age, ethnicity, faith or ability. (Detail of the work we're doing to support Disabled people can be found in The FA's Disability Strategy). We also need to work hard to recruit and retain volunteers who are the life blood of our game. As numbers continue to grow it is imperative that we have enough suitable training and competition facilities for grassroots players, our talented youth and our top professionals.

Players sit at the centre of our strategy, and we want to ensure that every girl and woman can enjoy their experience and fulfil their potential. That's why we want to prioritise female health and continue to develop safeguards that provide support across the game.

As the professional game is now run by a separate independent company, we must work closely in partnership to create a fully integrated approach to the development of the whole game. This is particularly true for the talent pathway where we need to continue to develop our club and England pathways to make sure young players with the aspiration to play professional club football or put on an England shirt are given every opportunity to do so.

The Lionesses have been a beacon for the women's game as players and as ambassadors, inspiring millions of people and driving the game to a new level. They stand on the shoulders of women whose courage and passion for the game made them trailblazers. We must never lose sight of our heritage and continue to value the unique and distinctive culture of the women's game.

Baroness Sue Campbell DBE
FA Director of Women's Football

The progress made in the women's and girls' game in recent years has been transformational. We have lots of challenges and opportunities ahead of us as we strive to build on this success. I am very excited to be joining the team as we embark on the next stage of this journey.

Sue Day, Incoming FA Director of Women's Football

GREAT TO DATE – BUT MORE TO DO

We are incredibly proud of our work over the last eight years, which has driven so much growth in women's and girls' football. The stats speak for themselves in every part of the game, whether it be participation numbers in the grassroots game or the fantastic crowds and broadcast audiences for the Barclays WSL and Lionesses, the growth has been phenomenal. The top female players are now household names and incredible role models to inspire girls around the country to try football.

That said, until we have the same number of women and girls playing as men and boys, there is still more work to do. We have taken huge strides and driven meaningful change but gaps in participation remain, both in specific age groups and in communities. This is why our ambition to deliver equal opportunities for women's and girls' football is one of the four gamechangers in our overall FA 2024-28 strategy. By continuing to focus on opportunities in schools and introducing more opportunities in clubs around the country, we can close these gaps.

We're also committed to ridding football of any type of discrimination and in the process setting an ongoing example for our wider society to emulate. Given we have historically run the women's game at every level – from grassroots to England teams – we can directly influence this area, alongside the newly established company running the Barclays WSL and Barclays Women's Championship, whether by running audience-targeted inclusion programmes or coming down hard on any discriminatory practices.

In the next four years, we will set our sights on more international success, as well as building the quality and sustainability of our women's and girls' leagues and cup competitions and developing facilities to match our ambitions.

None of our ambitious plans can be delivered without seamless collaboration with football's stakeholders, as well as focusing on the key findings of Karen Carney MBE's independent review into the future of domestic women's football¹.

We head into the 2024-28 period in great shape, with ambition to deliver more growth and societal change.

GOLDEN THREADS

ENABLERS

*Reaching Higher will build on the success of The Gameplan For Growth (2016-20) and Inspiring Positive Change (2020-24), The FA's previous two women's and girls' game strategies.

OUR FOUR STRATEGIC PRIORITIES

1

BUILD AND PROTECT THE UNIQUENESS OF THE WOMEN'S GAME

AT LEAST 50% OF PEOPLE WITH AN INTEREST IN FOOTBALL UNDERSTAND THE UNIQUE VALUES OF THE WOMEN'S GAME.

We owe so much to our former players who had the courage and passion to forge a new future for women's football. They have played a pivotal part in shaping the identity of the game as it exists today and, in order to grow, we must continue to honour our history and recognise those who have contributed towards making it so unique.

We want to bring all of our distinct qualities to everyone in the game, ensuring it is appreciated and valued in its own right; building and protecting what makes us special.

Together, we have the chance to inspire a generation of girls and women to play, coach, officiate or administer in the game. No girl or woman should be constrained by historical prejudices and we want to encourage everyone to follow their dreams, whatever they may be.

Sue Campbell

2

WIN A MAJOR TOURNAMENT.

We stand in the present, proud of how much has been accomplished over the last four years and the growth of the women's game. However, the world around us is changing quickly and competitors are fast approaching so we must keep investing in our programmes, our people and ourselves to stay ahead.

We want to win more tournaments and continue to be world leaders both on and off the pitch, making football more equal and accessible at every level of the game and ensuring that our pathway and teams represent society.

We recognise that success is not down to one person or one team. At the core of our strategy are our people, and we will be investing in them to deliver high performance across the board. We aim to foster an environment where everyone shares a strong sense of purpose and feels aligned with our values, beliefs and behaviours and is motivated to meet and exceed our agreed goals.

Kay Cossington

Kay Cossington
FA Women's Technical Director

3

BUILD ROBUST, HIGH-QUALITY COMPETITION

97% RETENTION OF CLUBS ACROSS THE FA WOMEN'S NATIONAL LEAGUE AND REGIONAL LEAGUES.

The pyramid provides connectivity across women's football from grassroots through to the professional game and England teams. It serves to enhance the unique culture of the game and provides participation and development opportunities for players, coaches, referees and administrators at every level.

Our focus is to work with clubs to provide safe and inclusive environments within their local communities and drive standards to improve sustainability and the quality of football. We will continue to support clubs in playing at an appropriate level by making sure that the pyramid structure is fit for purpose.

We want to build on the success of the Adobe Women's FA Cup and FA Women's National League and increase the connections that clubs have with their supporters by ensuring that all competitions are compelling and provide entertaining football.

Nick Frith

Nick Frith
Women's Leagues Operations Senior Manager

4

DELIVER EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES FOR WOMEN AND GIRLS TO PLAY

90% OF SCHOOLS TO DELIVER EQUAL ACCESS FOR GIRLS TO PLAY FOOTBALL IN KEY STAGES 2 & 3.

The amazing success of the Lionesses has supercharged the demand for women and girls to play. We've now got the highest number of female players on record, and we have made huge progress in school provision for girls.

There is so much to be proud of, but the job is not yet done. We want to grow sessional football for women, do more to ensure that all schools provide the same opportunities for girls as they do boys, and strengthen the pathway to professional and grassroots clubs. Our ambition is to ensure every woman and girl who wants to play football has an opportunity to do so – either casually or competitively – in a safe and enjoyable setting.

OUR ENABLERS

COMMERCIAL

BY 2028 WE WILL:

secure significant additional funding and investment to support women's and girls' grassroots football and pyramid; the Adobe Women's FA Cup; and England national teams winning major tournaments, allowing the game and its participants to thrive.

BY...

- Deepening relationships with FA commercial partners and further aligning on purpose driven output, resulting in greater support and investment into women's football.
- Developing purpose-led propositions for new partners, and endeavouring to include shared commitment in supporting women & girls to excel in the game.
- Continuing to broaden the commercial appeal of the Adobe Women's FA Cup through strategic development of the competition.

TECHNOLOGY AND DATA

BY 2028 WE WILL:

have a robust and relevant set of digital products and services that connects, enhances and stretches our collective ambition.

BY...

- Building fit-for-purpose products, services and providing expert knowledge.
- Providing access to actionable data that can be used to inform onward strategy and tactical intervention.
- Continuing to build and refine our technology governance so the game is safe for all.

MARKETING AND COMMUNICATIONS

BY 2028 WE WILL:

inspire the nation to watch, play and participate in women's and girls' football whilst nurturing the game's unique culture.

BY...

- Championing the individuals across all communities who showcase the sport's unique values.
- Proactively and passionately campaigning for equal opportunities for girls in schools and clubs.
- Using innovative storytelling that builds deep and long-lasting connections with our England teams and the Adobe Women's FA Cup, whilst also shining a light across the women's pyramid.

FACILITIES

BY 2028 WE WILL:

build more and improve existing facilities to boost accessibility and inclusivity for women and girls.

BY...

- Transforming grass pitch quality to provide more playing opportunities for women and girls.
 - Building more 3G pitches with priority access for women and girls.
- Creating more female-friendly clubhouses.

THE UNITED POWER OF PARTNERSHIPS

The implementation of the strategy you are reading would not be possible without effective and committed collaboration between ourselves and a range of partners.

Key among these is the strong network of County FAs, with whom we work day-in, day-out to grow the game throughout England at regional and local levels. You can find a full list of County FAs and contacts here.

There are also a wider range of funding partners, who share our aims for the women's and girls' game, and without whose financial investment many of our ambitions could not be realised.

Our development programmes could not have the scope they do without the involvement of several national delivery partners.

The growth and interest in women's and girls' football would also not have been achieved without the vital involvement of our broadcast and commercial partners.

Our collective thanks go to all our much-valued partners, with whom we look forward to working throughout the next four years – and beyond.
